PROJECT TO WHICH THE GRANT REFERS

Ecosistema dell'Innovazione "Rome Technopole" - ECS00000024 PNRR Missione 4 - Componente 2 - Investimento 1.5 Finanziato dall'Unione europea – NextGenerationEU CODICE CUP: F83B22000040006

TITLE OF THE RESEARCH PROGRAMME OF THE ANNUAL GRANT:

RanGer: optimization of devices based on High Purity Germanium in cryogenic liquids and development of analysis techniques for high performances.

DESCRIPTION OF THE ANNUAL GRANT RESEARCH PROGRAMME

The project consists in the optimization of the performance of HPGe (High Purity Germanium) radiation detectors. These detectors are widely used in many fields of science and technology, including medical, environmental/nuclear monitoring and security applications.

The main activity encompasses the following three tasks:

1. development of germanium diodes (HPGe) fabricated through crystal growth and modeling, with optimized physical geometries and internal electric field lines. This improves the sensitivity of HPGe detectors, while maintaining a uniform response, thanks to the application of uniform electric field gradients in large volumes;
2. implementation of innovative "digital signal processing" (DSP) techniques on large amounts of data acquired with HPGe (and SiPM) detectors for the automation of reading with energy measurement performance (accuracy and resolution) and "pulse shape discrimination" (identification of the nature of the radiation) to minimize the effect of electronic noise and any environmental electromagnetic noise.
3. Work on improving the capabilities to discriminate the type of radiation under examination (alpha, beta or gamma) as a function of their energy

Methodology and synergy with industry:

- Activity 1) requires the simulation of HPGe detector prototypes in collaboration with industries bearing expertise in the production of semiconductor diodes, to reach medium mass scales (kilogram). High-performance computing simulations with Neural Network are necessary for the simulation of the field lines starting from the geometries of the prototype diodes and the development of the current signals (charge drift towards the electrodes, width of the depletion zone). Standard simulation techniques with analytical models are not sufficiently performing in such cases.
- Activity 2) requires the development of ad-hoc algorithms for the analysis of the waveforms obtained in output of step 1); and their subsequent optimization, for the processing of the waveforms output from the prototypes developed by the partner industries.
 - On the one hand, software codes are developed for the analysis of large data of (digital) waveform samples;

- on the other hand, constructive feedback will be given to industries for the improvement of the construction characteristics of HPGe detectors using the simulations referred to in point 1)
- Activity 3) involves the development of a cryogenic set-up with HPGe immersed in liquid argon and data taking with radioactive sources to develop methods for Pulse Shape Discrimination

Art. 4

The Committee will define the criteria of the selection before proceeding with the evaluation.

Art. 5

1. The research grant cannot be awarded to students enrolled in undergraduate, Master, Ph.D. or medical specialization in Italy or abroad, and involves placement on unpaid leave or employee with public administration other than those referred to in point .3 below.
2. Participation in the selection is not allowed for spouses, relatives and akin up to and including the 4th degree of the:
